Access for Gated Communities

Gates are not permitted to obstruct fire department access. In situations where property owners elect to install electronic gates across a fire department access roadway, an EVAC access system must be installed.

EVAC is a radio control system designed for emergency service providers. Gated communities are required to install a receiver on their gate to work in conjunction with the remote provided to the emergency service provider.

When a fire truck, ambulance or law enforcement vehicle arrives at a gated entry the operator simply presses the Emergency Vehicle Access Control remote and is granted access to the property. No sirens or fumbling with keys. The EVAC system can be used on community, private or commercial gates and installs quickly and out of sight.
